

Liberation Spring Semester 2013 'Springing Liberation by Decolonizing Now!'

The LIBERATION SPRING SEMESTER has as its purpose to spring forward a social movements organizations desire to integrate 'Decolonizing' and put back Liberation into the movement. Social systemic change is the goal not just changing policies.

As social movements in the United States we are developing a '21st Century' paradigm by focusing on how to deconstruct the system and culture that perpetuates racism, divisions by class and poverty, ethnic communities, by gender and sex, region and neighborhood, and to dismantle oppressive systems of patriarchy, militarization, violence and war. To stop the closure of our public schools are privatized. In short how to decolonize.

We can not teach liberation, but we can share the knowledge, collectively, and we can identify new defining knowledge of the age old questions of social change and the how to do it? How to begin to deconstruct the system from where you are at on a daily practice resulting in new practices, in a new moment, politically, historically, economically and socially. The University Sin Fronteras will be operating the following Campuses during Liberation Spring:

ATL-Atlanta Campus
SJU-San Juan, Puerto Rico
SAT-San Antonio, Texas
DET-Detroit, Michigan

Freedom Summer Semester 2013

The University Sin Fronteras will be joining many other social movement organizations in the summer 2013 to organize a phenomenal FREEDOM SUMMER '13. Hundreds of teenage youth will be participating in the Freedom Summer Semester in all four (4) campuses plus new campuses that will be starting up, like the Arizona campus, and others like Oakland-San Francisco, Chicago, Washington DC, and El Paso.
